INFORMATION & ACTION ITEMS

College facility rentals
The board approved updated facility rental rates for 2015-16 for use of campus facilities at Foothill and De Anza, as well as service and equipment fees associated with facility use. Trustees also approved a facilities fee policy for De Ana and a policy on use of alcoholic beverages in De Anza facilities.

New courses at Foothill
Trustees approved Foothill curriculum updates for inclusion in the 2016-17 catalog, including new courses in industrial design, community dental health, public health, horticulture and fashion & costume design.

New courses at De Anza
The board approved several dozen new courses in the Computer Information Systems Department and the Honors Program at De Anza for 2016-17.

Closing of bond refinancing
John Sheldon from Morgan Stanley reported to the board on the successful refinancing of $83.1 million in Measure C general obligation bonds. Similar to refinancing a home at a lower interest rate, the bond refunding resulted in a total anticipated savings to district taxpayers of $7.4 million. The refinancing means a reduction in debt service of almost $465,000 annually and an average savings to district property owners of 23 cents per $100,000 of assessed property value each year through 2036.
The district’s excellent credit ratings and strong investor demand contributed to the refunding’s success. In the days leading up to the sale, Standard & Poor’s upgraded the district’s credit rating from AA to AA+ and Moody’s affirmed the district’s Aaa rating.

Investor demand far outpaced the amount of bonds the district offered for sale, with initial orders of $206.3 million placed for $83.1 million in bonds.

The refunding reduced the projected Measure C tax rates for district property owners to an average of $17.04 per $100,000 of assessed value. That compares favorably to the district’s original projection in 2006 of $24 per $100,000 of assessed value.

Vice Chancellor Kevin McElroy noted that the planned sale was delayed for several months because of market volatility and increases in interest rates. By watching closely for the rates to come back down, he said, the district was able to come very close to the savings figures it had originally projected.

Approved by district voters in 2006, Measure C authorized the sale of $490.8 million in general obligation bonds. Approximately $434 million in Measure C bonds have been issued to date.

District Investments
Commenting on a routine report on the district’s investments in the Santa Clara County Commingled Investments Pool, De Anza President Brian Murphy said he believes the commingled fund includes corporate bond investments in fossil fuels. Although the district cannot control the county fund, he said, he suggested letting the fund’s managers know that the Foothill-De Anza Foundation has stopped investing in fossil fuel companies, minimized investments in commingled funds that include fossil fuel companies, and divested from any fossil fuel holdings.

Hearing on 2015-16 budget
Vice Chancellor Kevin McElroy gave the board a preview of the 2015-16 adopted budget, followed by a public hearing that drew no speakers. The $197.8 million budget will come to the board for approval next month. It is the best budget in the past five years, he said, and puts the district in a fiscally stable position. Contributing to the positive budget picture are an increase in base funding from the state and an infusion of one-time dollars to reimburse community colleges for a large backlog of unfunded state-mandated costs.

The district’s enrollment trend appears to be stabilizing, Vice Chancellor McElroy said. The district projects the colleges will serve 32,158 full-time-equivalent students in 2015-16, down from a peak of more than 38,000 FTES in 2008-09. A slightly larger percentage now are non-resident students. He noted that reductions in enrollment over the past few years have resulted in an ongoing revenue loss to the district of about $31 million a year.

The district begins the fiscal year with a beginning balance of $48.5 million. Of that, $22.9 million will be used to maintain the Stability Fund; most of the remainder will replenish B budgets for the colleges and Central Services and fund a 5 percent budget reserve for emergencies. A small portion is being set aside for use by the colleges to stimulate enrollment as needed. Vice Chancellor McElroy said that maintaining the Stability Fund is important because it gives the district a cushion for the next inevitable economic downturn.

While the fiscal picture looks good, he said, there are some unknowns. These include the still-undetermined cost of addressing seismic issues at the Flint Center garage, the impact of the end of Proposition 30’s sales-tax increase in 2016, fluctuations in the state’s economic fortunes, expenses outpacing revenues, the outcome of this year’s negotiations with bargaining units, and the unpredictability of enrollment.

Temporary employee salary schedule & job descriptions
Trustees approved revised job descriptions and a salary schedule for temporary employee assignments. A job category of “note taker” was added at $9 per hour, and hourly rates were increased from $8 to $9 for entry-level Child Development Center instructional assistants, and from $75 to $110 for educational service providers (professional experts).

REPORTS & HEARINGS OF ITEMS NOT ON THE AGENDA
(Board members cannot discuss items that are not placed in advance on the agenda.)

Public comments
Palo Alto resident Ken Horowitz, a recently retired Foothill College instructor, encouraged trustees to look at increasing consistency between Foothill and De Anza. He pointed to an extensive consultant study of alignment in curriculum, course assignment, expectations and other areas between the Palo Alto Unified School District’s two high schools. He spoke about the need for instructors to be sensitive to the academic pressures that students face.

Presidents’ comments
De Anza President Brian Murphy reported that De Anza is partnering with Joint Venture Silicon Valley on an Oct. 6 event at the college focusing on income inequality in Silicon Valley. He said it will focus on a recently released report from Joint Venture’s Institute of Regional Studies and will include a panel discussion with students.

Foothill Interim President Kimberlee Messina reported that during the lull before the fall term begins, students are lining up for placement tests and students and parents are visiting the campus.

Chancellor’s comments
Chancellor Judy Miner reported that the district has begun the process for seeking reaffirmation as a member of the board of the League for Innovation in the Community College. Reaffirmation is required when there is a change in the district’s top leader. The reaffirmation process involves producing an extensive report for presentation to the League board in March and said staff members will contact the colleges for information about programs and practices that should be featured. After presentation of the report, a subcommittee from the League board makes a two-day visit to the district.

Chancellor Miner commented on a recent flamingo-decorating contest in Central Services organized by Human Resources. Twenty-nine birds were creatively, and in some cases extravagantly, outfitted. Among her favorites, she said, was the “low-bid flamingo,” which had no decorations but met minimum bid requirements.

Board comments
De Anza Student Trustee Arjun Gadkari reported that he and Foothill Student Trustee Alexander Park recently attended a Student Trustee Workshop in Costa Mesa where they received leadership and trustee training and learned about the history of California community colleges. Student Trustee Park commented that it was particularly interesting to learn about fiscal inequities among college districts. He reported that three Foothill students recently took part in the Harvard Project for Asian & International Relations, traveling to Manila, Philippines, to discuss key regional and global issues and hear from experts with students from more than 50 countries.

Trustee Joan Barram reported on attending the recent Education Summit sponsored by Silicon Valley Leadership Group, long with Chancellor Miner and Interim President Messina. She attended sessions on workforce development, education reform and a panel featuring representatives from LinkedIn, Intel and Comcast discussing their companies’ involvement in education.

Board President Pearl Cheng commented on attending a Cupertino Rotary Club meeting to hear about the vision for transforming the aging Vallco shopping mall into “The Hills at Vallco,” down the road from De Anza. Peter Pau’s Sand Hill Property Co. plans to redevelop the aging shopping center with a mixed-use project combining retail, office and housing. Capping the development would be a 30-acre elevated park and “the world’s largest ‘green’ roof” with 3.8 miles of trails, plus vineyards, orchards and gardens, a play area and amphitheater. In addition, the developer has promised to donate $20 million for a new K-12 school and science camp endowment, and another $20 million for new classrooms and an “innovation center” for the Fremont Union High School District. Among other things, President Cheng noted, the plans include building a transit center. Chancellor Miner, Trustee Barram and Student Trustee Park also attended the meeting.
